ADVANCING WOMEN-LED ENTREPRENEURSHIP

In September 2016, Babson’s Center for Women’s Entrepreneurial Leadership (CWEL) and Breakaway Ventures held the Babson Breakaway Challenge™, the first and only competition to promote gender parity in the venture capital industry, and awarded $250,000 plus in-kind prizes to a high-potential, women-led business. Twenty semifinalists and five finalists pitched to a panel of distinguished judges.

Susan Duffy, CWEL’s executive director, and John Burns MBA’05, president of Breakaway Ventures, launched the Babson Breakaway Challenge in response to a report by Babson's Diana Project™, Women Entrepreneurs 2014: Bridging the Gender Gap in Venture Capital. The research revealed that while women entrepreneurs are majority owners of nearly 36 percent of all U.S. businesses, they receive only 2.7 percent of all venture capital funding.
