Our research efforts are carried out by renowned academics continually working to explore the influence of entrepreneurial legacies within families, as well as the impact of family entrepreneurs on the global economy. The findings of our research have been disseminated at conferences around the world, including:

» Family Entrepreneurship and Society Workshop Series, Audencia Business School, Nantes, France
» Family Entrepreneurship Workshop, Dublin City University, Dublin, Ireland
» Business Families Institute 5th Anniversary Celebration, Singapore Management University, Singapore
THE STEP (SUCCESSFUL TRANSGENERATIONAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP PRACTICES) PROJECT, led by Academic Director Matthew Allen, is the first ongoing global research study focused on entrepreneurship in business families. Founded in 2005 and convened by Babson, the STEP Project is a global applied research initiative that explores the entrepreneurial process and activities of business families over generations, generating solutions that have immediate application for family leaders.

The STEP Project includes more than 175 scholars and 32 partner institutions from Europe, Latin America, Asia, North America, and Africa.

THE WORK OF STEP HAS RESULTED IN:

» \(16\) REGIONAL SUMMITS
» \(19\) SCHOLARLY ARTICLES
» \(22\) PUBLISHED BOOKS
» \(3\) GLOBAL SUMMITS
Our programs for undergraduate and graduate Babson students are designed to build the critical tools (including self-awareness, communication, and leadership skills) that will enable the next generation to constructively engage with their family’s entrepreneurial legacy. These initiatives create vital connections within entrepreneurial families while encouraging students to identify innovative ways for them to create value beyond the traditional business model.
CURRENT IFE PROGRAMS INCLUDE:

» The Family Entrepreneurship Amplifier
   This 4-credit, full-year course, launched in the fall of 2018, offers a select cohort of students and their entrepreneurial families an opportunity to access Babson alumni, resources, and programs as they create a new entrepreneurial legacy together.

» Family Entrepreneurship Peer Forums
   These monthly forums, moderated by a faculty member, offer groups of eight family entrepreneurship students the opportunity to explore challenges at the nexus of business—family—personal that they cannot fully explore anywhere else. Through the development of trusting relationships and experience sharing, students build their capacity to create economic, social, and family value.

» Live Case Studies
   In these forums, a leader presents a family entrepreneurship challenge they are currently facing. Students, considering how this challenge relates to their personal circumstances, then work in groups to develop and propose action plans.

» Family Entrepreneurship Mentors
   This program matches Babson alumni and current students from similar family entrepreneurship backgrounds (such as industry or region). Through these monthly one-on-one meetings, students receive invaluable perspective and relevant guidance from entrepreneurial leaders who understand their unique challenges.
“I would highly recommend the Family Entrepreneurship Peer Forum to future family business successors. It’s a small, close-knit group which offered me a great opportunity to discuss and probe unique family business-related issues that I had never been able to share before. You can open up without feeling like you’re being judged, and know that you aren’t the only one going through these challenges.”
